 - 5) The following sentences should be added to the end of the last paragraph of Section 2.3.11(C)(2)(h):

6) The following paragraphs should be added to 2.3.11(C)(4)(a):

If the Telephone Company finds that the data submitted by the customer does not adequately support the reported percentages, the Telephone Company may assign percentages based on the methodology specified in Section 2.3.11(C)(1). Upon assigning an intrastate percentage of use, the Telephone Company will notify the customer of the change and that it will go into effect on the next billing cycle. The Telephone Company's designated percentage will remain in effect for twelve (12) months unless the customer contests the percentage as described in Section 2.3.11(C)(4)(a)(2).

- (1) If the Telephone Company determines that the reported intrastate percentage of use varies more than plus or minus three (3) basis points from the weighted average of all other customers and that the supporting data is not sufficient to substantiate the reported percentages, the Telephone Company may either develop percentages for originating and terminating usage based on actual originating usage or based on a weighted average using billed access of all other customers' reported percentages.
- (2) The customer may dispute the designated intrastate percentage(s) following the receipt of the bill. Disputes arising from the Telephone Company designating the intrastate percentage can be informally resolved. Any adjustment shall be on a prospective basis beginning with the next billing cycle. No retroactive adjustment is allowed.

If the Telephone Company and the customer cannot informally resolve the dispute, the customer may contest the designated intrastate percentage by requesting a mutually agreed upon independent auditor to review its report percentages. Any cost of an independent audit will be borne by the customer. An adjustment of the intrastate percentage that is a result of an audit will be on a prospective basis beginning with the next billing cycle.
